The musical score is written for a three-part setting in D major, 3/4 time. It consists of four systems of music, each with a treble and bass staff. The lyrics are arranged in three columns, corresponding to the three parts. The first system covers the first line of the poem, the second system the second line, the third system the third line, and the fourth system the fourth line. The score includes various musical notations such as notes, rests, and bar lines. Chord symbols (D, Em, A, G, Asus, F#, D/F#, F#m) are placed above the treble staff to indicate the harmonic structure.
